Special Edition

The expedition 'Trip to the Heart of the Caribe' arrived at Puerto Drummond

The Caracol Radio team of journalists accompanied by personnel from Puerto Drummond

Puerto Drummond received at their installations the team of journalists from Caracol Radio- Caribe region, who were full of happiness and the typical Costeño flavor.

At 11 in the morning on April 1st, the live transmission began for 'Trip to the Heart of the Caribe', a special that for the second consecutive year, shows the beauty and wealth typical of the Colombian Atlantic Coast.

The transmission took place from the company's fresh water reservoir, highlighting the natural wealth that can be found in the center of the Port, a symbol of its environmental commitment and a sustainable operation. In addition, the important work that has been carried out with the neighboring communities was highlighted, as well as work with other employees that are part of this mining project.

The journalists interviewed employees, contractors, and the community, so that in their own voices they could express to the public, the experiences they have lived while involved with the company.

During the event, folkloric presentations typical of the region were presented, and the event ended with the emission on the local Santa Marta news.

Drummond Port showed its social commitment

During this radio space, the leaders from each area explained the projects being carried out by Drummond in matters of social responsibility, industrial safety, compensation, and environmental commitment.

The Port's Administrative Manager, Enrique Alvarez, explained how the exploration, extraction, and coal transport process carried out by Drummond utilizes an environmentally friendly concept that involves the neighboring communities, and where the company looks to generate progress for Colombia, from every perspective. "Our commitment is with the people," highlighted Alvarez.

The Community Relationship Coordinator, Alvaro Daza, mentioned the projects being carried out by Drummond Port are with the company's areas of influence. "We support the social development of our communities from areas like culture, sports, health, and education," affirmed Daza.

The Caracol Radio team, which included the Information Director for the Caribbean Region, Martin Tapias, and journalists Victor Polo, Lina Palma, and Junior Beltran, expressed their satisfaction for all the processes being performed by the company in favor of the environment and the communities. "The environmental awareness shared by all of Drummond's personnel is an example of what should be implemented in society," affirmed Tapias.

Human Talent with the Drummond seal

They are the reflection of the team that the well-known Drummond family counts on.

The company's greatest pride are its employees, and thanks to the selection processes that the company has, it has been able to consolidate a team that is worthy of praise.

The company's desire to improve and support can be depicted in the following young adults: Dainer Zuñiga and Clayton Herrera. Each explained before the microphone the great opportunity that was presented to them by being selected for the Drummond scholarships, and who are now, after having graduated from college, working with the company.

“An example of persistence and hard work shows how they care for a company that has given so much to him and to many families in the region,” was how Martin Tapias defined Aldry Acosta, who has been with the company for 20 years. Acosta, explained how his work has been able to contribute to the growth of the region, and how valuable it is for him to work at Puerto Drummond

Jose Padilla is another employee the company is proud of. He's a train wagon dumper operator who alternates his shift with his talent as a Vallenato composer and singer. During the program, Padilla showed his talent and gave autographed CDs to all the journalists.

“Here at Drummond, we've found plenty of talent, and that shows this company's value,” concluded journalist Victor Polo.

We support our region's folklore

“The environmental and social processes that we perform at the company leave a daily positive impact in our communities,” affirmed Community Relations Coordinator, Alvaro Daza.

Following the beat of the drums and flutes, young dancers belonging to the Ciénaga Corporación Folclórica Costumbrista interpreted dances like the caiman cienaguero and the chemapale.

The transmission of the ‘Trip to the Heart of the Caribe’ program was filled with the cultural magic that characterizes the region. Traditional dances typical came to life through the Ciénaga Corporación Folclórica Costumbrista, moment in which the director of the corporation, Rafael Reguillo Mojica, once again thanked the support offered by the company to art and culture: “we have always counted in Drummond’s support to improve and foster these guys’ talent,” he said.

Journalists were pleasantly surprised by the work being performed by the company from all the areas involved. “Drummond is definitely committed to the people, the heart of our Caribe beats here,” expressed Victor Polo.
