

DRUMMOND INFORMS YOU

Special Edition

The Regional Center for Responsible Business and Entrepreneurship (CREER) took a tour of Drummond Ltd.

Amílcar Valencia, Director of the Environmental Department, explains to Luis Fernando de Angulo, Director of CREER, the importance of the Paujil reservoir, located at the Pribbenow mine.

The Regional Center for Responsible Business and Entrepreneurship (CREER) is a non-profit subsidiary in Colombia of the Institute for Business and Human Rights. CREER is conducting a Comprehensive Industry Review of the Impact of the Mining Sector in Colombia, to which Drummond Ltd. opened its doors to share its policies on Security, Human Rights, Corporate Social Responsibility, Human Resources, Environmental Compensation, Production, Resettlement of Neighboring Communities and Industrial Safety, among others.

The Paujil, a 208-hectare reservoir with a capacity of 10 million cubic liters of water was built by the company in 1997. It is home to various species of birds and fish and was one of the areas visited by representatives for this Research Center, as well as the Dispatch area located at the Pribbenow mine, from which they were able to observe the Mist Blowers and the importance of the fleet of tanker trucks in mitigating particulate matter.

The company knows the importance of contributing to these types of studies, which make it possible to view the actions that Drummond carries out transparently on a day-to-day basis to perform its work in the region, a responsible and sustainable activity.

Drummond Ltd., a good neighbor!
